

The City of Ascension

Our land is an anomaly the gravity is so strong that we stick to the ground like glue. Clouds move at our feet and at eye level but rarely over our head. On the other side of our city lay a mountain full of evolving ecosystems and running streams. You would think that being on the mountains underneath you would be hanging upside down, but the land is an illusion on perspective. Just a few steps off the west end of the city and you are in a completely new world, where the earth is constantly adapting.

Our world was not always like this, I heard a story that we used to be on the ground like everybody else, but our king was paranoid and feared a war might take away his reign and his kingdom. The king made a deal with a wizard asking if he could enchant his kingdom to keep it safe from intruders. In return the king offered a section of his land. The wizard put his hands to the earth and suddenly the dirt began to split, rising for days till we came to a complete stop. The king was not exactly clear in how he wanted to protect the city but alas the wish was granted. The king now had what he wanted, his land and his people. The world underneath then belonged to the wizard. It is said that the two dragons that fly around our city were sent to protect and preserve the gifts of both sides, nature and industry, natural and developed. But I think they are just fascinated by how we live our life.

I have heard many stories of how our city of ascension came to be, these are some of the few....
